FRAUDULENT PURCHASE ORDERS

Bradken Limited (ASX: BKN) would like to alert its customers, suppliers and related entities that it has been recently hit by multiple fraud attempts by someone attempting to purchase digital storage equipment on behalf of Bradken, using the name of Executive Management representatives, the Company's Atchison foundry, USA address, a fake 913 area code, the Company's BAML bank account number and trade references. The initial occurrence took place in Germany, however the latest communication has come from California.

It is evident that someone is using the Bradken name internationally to conduct fraudulent activities and, although it appears to be focused on computer hardware and storage purchase, it could spread beyond this.

Bradken asks its customers, suppliers and related entities to confirm all questionable purchase orders with the Company through usual communication channels or regional contact numbers available of the Bradken website.
